
Title: Clergy of Oblivion and the Anti Virtues

Author: Annatar

Clergy
of
Oblivion
Oblivion has
commanded that there should be a
communion of his servants. That his children should join together in holy vision.

Those whose destiny
it is to bring that to pass belong to the Clergy of Oblivion.

We are the bond that brings the sects
together.
We are the shadow in
the darkness.
Our methods are our
own.
Our purposes solely
of Oblivion.

The hand of Oblivion
acts in many unknown
ways, most of which,
ye are not worthy to know of. Few, indeed
only very few can ever come to know the essence of Oblivion.
For them there is the
clergy.
In the land of Britannia we have dedicated ourselves to promoting those values
that are the antithesis of those promoted by our puppet king.

Members of the

clergy tirelessly
endeavor to bring about the time when one and all recognize the
depravation of false
truths presented as virtues.

There are no
particular
requirements save one
of complete dedication
to the purposes of our God and the guild.

Oblivion is the end and Oblivion is the beginning.

The Anti-Virtues

Covetous

Let us first say something about Sacrifice. Surely it is obvious to you why a ruler such as Lord British is so keen on
the virtue of Sacrifice. Indeed,
perhaps you should
sacrifice more for
your pathetic
monarch. If you do
you are weak.
Sacrifice is nothing
but an ignoble faade.
We despise all that is weak. We hate it. As such, the very notion of Sacrifice such as
put forward by our impotent king is egrerious to us.

"Follow Oblivion and
be rewarded in
un-fathomable
ways"... how can the decision be difficult to make ... unless, of course, if you are weak.

Deceit

The purpose of Oblivion is known
only to those privileged to follow him. All others can wallow in ignorance
and in the blissful
deception we will leave them in.

Despise

The undead have no
compassion for those who, in their
weakness, shunned
the greatest gift they could have. We despise all life, holding it in utter contempt.

Pride

What principle is fundamental to all
sentient beings--
Pride is! Only a corrupt ruler like Lord British would attempt to dissuade
peoples under his control from taking Pride in what they do.

Shame

We do not concern
ourselves with the perceptions living
beings hold for us.
The concept of shame
is merely a tool we enjoy using to destroy living. The undead are
